

SINGLE-PAYER HEALTHCARE MOVIES

1) Now Is the Time: Healthcare for Everybody

Produced by Laurie Simons and Terry Sterrenberg

While the Affordable Care Act has helped some people, many of us are feeling the pinch of rising costs and narrowing networks. Through interviews, animations and exposé, Now is the Time tells the story of the drama, struggle, and success of the movement towards health care equity. This 70-minute documentary explores key questions:

- Why has a single-payer system not passed the US Congress, or even been considered?
- How does a single payer save money?
- What is being done to clear the misperceptions that keep us from moving forward.

2) FIX IT: Healthcare at the Tipping Point

Produced by Vincent Mondillo and Richard Master

This powerful documentary reaches across the political and ideological divide. It makes the case for business leaders support for major healthcare reform. The film was two years in the making, with more than forty voices advocating for reform, including: activists, health policy experts, economists, physicians, nurses, patients, business and labor leaders. Taking an in-depth look into how our dysfunctional health care system is damaging our economy, suffocating our businesses, discouraging physicians and negatively impacting on the nation's health, a compelling case is made for scrapping our complex and needlessly expensive multi-payer system for a single-payer one.

3) The Healthcare Movie

Are you getting the healthcare you need? There is a better way...

Americans are poorly served by our system of healthcare insurance: it's too expensive and leaves many uninsured. Decades of corporate lobbying and cynical public relation campaigns have blocked adoption of affordable, universal healthcare.

The Healthcare Movie tells us why the Canadian healthcare system is different – and better – than ours:

How it originated

How it works for ordinary Canadians

Narrated by Kiefer
Sutherland

How it is paid for

How it compares to the U.S. healthcare system
